Hi tecmono,

You're right, when your environment is set up to display warnings and you're running PHP 5.3 or higher, the split function has been deprecated on these PHP versions, and thus when installing the ATEND framework it displays these warnings.

Anyway, these are only deprecation warnings displayed during installation, but your installation has been completely fulfilled and it should work completely fine.

In the next release will replace the split function with the explode function to avoid the warnings.

Thanks for your feedback.

Kind regards.
