Posted by jkpcguru - 11 Jan 2011 02:05 Hi I'm thinking about buying your extension for my online store. Would I be able to do the following: Run a report giving me an order count of each size for each tshirt I sell so I know how many to order of each size in bulk Example: Tshirt 1 # of Small # of Medium # of Large Tshirt 2 # of Small # of Medium # of Large Thanks John Re: Product Attribute Reports

Hi John,
Thank you for your interest in our products.
The point you mention can be very useful, but it has some complexity. VM stores order items info in one register in the database, and that register holds the item (product) attributes in one unique field. That means that when you're dealing with one or more attributes, you get a property like tex example:	text size=medium color=red
This text-based information is hard to parse and process on SQL queries, but even though, I belied can do something about it (grouping information by this field content, we'd only need to parse it of after the query).
Let us take a deeper loop at it, and if it's doable, we'll include a new report area called Product Attributes the information reports, ok?	with al
Thank you for your feedback.
Kind regards.
